

Ten Fatal Flaws that Derail Leaders

WYNDHAM MILLS
INTERNATIONAL INC

REALITY-BASED BUSINESS COACHING

10 Fatal Flaws That Derail Leaders

Poor leadership in good times can be hidden, but poor leadership in bad times is a recipe for disaster. To find out why leaders fail, we scrutinized results from two studies: In one we collected 360 degree feedback data on more than 450 Fortune 500 executives and then teased out the characteristics of the 31 who were fired over the next three years. In the second, we analyzed 360-degree feedback data from more than 11,000 leaders and identified the 10% who were considered the least effective. We then compared the ineffective leaders with the fired leaders to come up with the most common leadership shortcomings. Every bad leader had at least one, and most had several.

The worst leaders:

Lack energy and enthusiasm. They see new initiatives as a burden, rarely volunteer, and fear being overwhelmed. One such leader was described as having the ability to “suck all of the energy out of room.”

Accept their own mediocre performance. They overstate the difficulty of reaching targets so that they look good when they achieve them. They live the mantra “Under promise and over deliver.”

Lack clear vision and direction. They believe their only job is to execute. Like a hiker who sticks close to the trail; they’re fine until they come to a fork.

Have poor judgment. They make decisions that colleagues and subordinates consider to be not in the organization’s best interests.

Don’t collaborate. They avoid peers, act independently, and view other leaders as competitors. As a result, they are set adrift by the very people whose insights and support they need.

Don’t walk the talk. They set standards of behavior or expectations of performance and the violate them. They’re perceived as lacking integrity.

Resist new ideas. They reject suggestions from subordinates and peers. Good ideas aren’t implemented, and the organization gets stuck.

Don’t learn from mistakes. They may make no more mistakes than their peers, but they fail to use setbacks as opportunities for improvement, hiding their errors and brooding about them instead.

Lack interpersonal skills. They make sins of both commission (they’re abrasive and bullying) and omission (they’re aloof, unavailable and reluctant to praise).

Fail to develop others. They focus on themselves to the exclusion of developing subordinates, causing individuals and teams to disengage.

These sound like obvious flaws that any leader would try to fix. But the ineffective leaders we studied were often unaware that they exhibited these behaviors. In fact, those who were rated most negatively rated themselves substantially more positively. Leaders should take a very hard look at themselves and ask for candid feedback on performance in these specific areas. Their jobs may depend on it.

Excerpted from the June 2009 HBR article by Jack Zenger and Joseph Folkm

About Wyndham Mills International, Inc.

WMI is an independent retained search firm located in Greensboro, North Carolina, that specializes in locating, selecting, and placing high quality professional talent for major organizations both domestically and internationally. With a team of seasoned search consultants and a flexible, service-based approach, the company has experienced double-digit growth since its inception in 1994. Wyndham Mills International understands that experience and knowledge alone does not guarantee the perfect fit between leader and organization. That is why we perform various assessments on each candidate to ensure not only required experience and knowledge base, but also cultural fit. WMI continues to support the best fit for its client partners by offering professional onboarding training for placed candidates, as well as successful team development and professional coaching.